ASK JEANNE MAKE A SPLASH WITH STUDS

Dear Jeanne, Studded accessories are really in lately, but is there an age wherethistrendbecomes tacky?—Nicola

Dear Nicola,

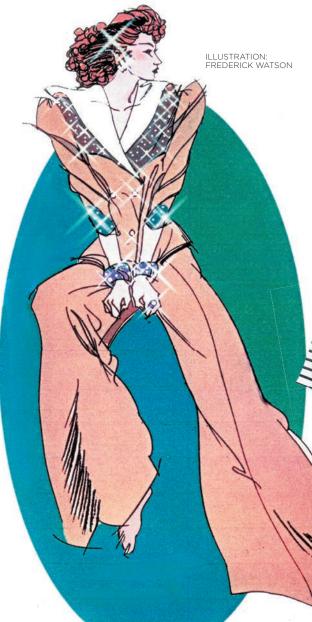

I've said it before and I'll say it again: chronological age doesn't matter much in my style book. Body type and spirit prevail when it comes to how one should dress and which trends to subscribe to. Yes, all kinds of studs are red-hot these days. Even 86-year-old Queen Elizabeth wore a white Angela Kelly coat studded with Swarovski crystals to part of the Diamond Jubilee celebrations.

Most of the studs we see on accessories, however, are of the metallic variety, and the look can create a rock-star vibe. But there's nothing wrong with that; just know that context is key. Shoes, bags and belts with studs are attention getting, and if you work in a conservative office, you might want to save your studded accessories for après-five (unless you don't mind being labelled the resident in-office punk).

When I say that you are never too old for studs, I practice what I preach. Last Christmas, at age 59, I wore a studded leather Versace for H&M mini dress to a couple of parties and got compliments galore. I also bought a fabulous little studded leather evening pouch last year that I've been wearing with a variety of looks, from little black dresses to skinny jeans—it's become one of my favourite accessories. Studs will certainly give you instant edge, just don't go overboard: one studded accessory is really all you need. And if you decide to go with studded shoes or boots, let your feet make the main statement. You also might want to use studded accessories to pump $up\,the\,style\,volume\,of\,some\,of\,your\,more\,demure\,and$ feminine garments. Juxtaposition is the name of the fashion game these days, and the more you can mix that hard/soft story, the more interesting your outfit will be.

I've found that studded accessories can be a bit of a pain when travelling, though. Unless they're packed away in your luggage, these pieces will inevitably set the metal detectors off, costing you precious time at the airport. But studded sunglasses, hairclips or bracelets are simple to pop off. But then, with the bikerchic look you'll achieve with your studded accessories, you might be compelled to just hop on the back of a Harley and really travel in style.—Jeanne

If you have a small bust:

The easiest bust enhancer is a frilly bikini top or one-piece with frills around the neckline

Padded and pushup-style tops

- Opt for styles with removable
- add a quick boost to your shape padding so you can customize your look

If you have a large bust:

- Look for wide halter-style straps to help keep a bigger bust perky
- For added support, choose underwire bra cups with adjustable straps that criss-cross in the back
- Make sure the cup offers full coverage to avoid spillage

MADONNA CONE BRA REVIVAL

Remember the pointy, Jean-Paul Gaultier lingerie that was a Madonna staple in the '90s? Well the 53-year-old icon has a new cone corset for her international MDNA tour. For 2012, Gaultier designed the cones and corset as a leather cage worn over a shirt, tie and pinstripe pants, telling Women's Wear Daily: "It's all about masculine and feminine, classics reinterpreted for 2012."-V.G.

15 & COUNTING

Since 2004, 31-year-old Paris Hilton has raked in $1.5-billion for her perfume sales, according to a story in Women's Wear Daily. Almost puts that whole hotel inheritance thing to shame.

The star launches her 15th fragrance this month—named Dazzle. Reports have it that the new spritz is a fruity floral: notes of apple, maraschino cherry and pear define the opening; its heart includes violet, orchid and orange blossom, and the base is defined by a "Hilton signature." That would be patchouli, musk and, of course, pink champagne.—Deborah Fulsang

YOU CAN BUY KATE MIDDLETON'S HAT

Want to own a bit of Royal history? Two hats worn by the Duchess of Cambridge before she married into the Royal Family will be up for auction June 26 in London by famed fashion auctioneer Kerry Taylor. Both feathered and made of black straw, the hats were actually rented by Middleton for special events and are expected to bring in at least $1,500 each.-Vanessa Grant

IKEA DOES FASHION

Ikea has caught the fashion bug, introducing a little ready-to-wear into their stores. Featuring rugs, towels and pillows with '60s-inspired colourful prints, the limited-edition collection also includes a beach bag that could double as a city tote. The best part? The prices: the cotton robe is $8 and the cotton-polyester bag is only $5. See the collection on TheKit.ca.-V.G.

NAME SUSIE SHEFFMAN CITY TORONTO OCCUPATION CREATIVE DIRECTOR AT ELUXE.CA

usie Sheffman can rattle off fashion knowledge like a sports fan can baseball stats. She started as a stylist and editor, and was Fashion magazine's fashion director for more than 10 years. Now, she begins a new chapter with Eluxe.ca, Canada's leading online e-tailer.

With her years of experience, Sheffman understands better than anyone that fashion needs to be fun. Her style role models? "Four-yearold girls for their fearless devotion to colour and print," says Sheffman, "and nine-year-old boys because they couldn't care less." Her imagination runs amok in her work. And with each editorial, from the Bahamas to the Yukon, she creates sublime fashion images that inspire and enlighten. Her prolific body of work earned her Best Fashion Editor at the P&G Beauty Awards last November.

But while Sheffman is among the fashion elite, she plays it cool with her closet. A chameleon, she dives into each season with an energy that would tire an army of interns. She approaches her style with a consciousness for the utilitarianbut always with a nod to the times. Sheffman's style may seem simple, but it takes a good eye to combine colours and prints with tomboy flair. Her sartorial mantra is simple: "to always be comfortable and true to myself." She knocks her own advice out of the park.
