HOW TO GO FROM GIRLY TO GROWN-UP

Dear Jeanne, I'm 22 and I still dress like a young teenager. When I go out I usually wear a ponytail, a track jacket, jeans and a T-shirt. What can I do to look more grown up?
—Livie

Dear Livie,
There's absolutely nothing wrong with a ponytail, track jacket, jeans, and a T-shirt, even for a 50-plus-year-old woman. It's the frequency with which you go for casual looks of this nature, the quality and design of the garments, and the style in which you strut them that matter.

First, let's talk about how often you're opting for this sporty, dressed-down mode. If it's on a daily basis, that's not so great, but on the weekends, depending on your activity, it's totally fine. You might want to take the style quotient up a notch by going for well-designed or more expensive designer track jackets and T-shirts that are of a better quality than the inexpensive stuff that's cropping up everywhere. Quality and design has a lot to do with turning up the level of sophistication. The idea of adopting just one type of comfy uniform to wear day in and day out is holding you back. Adults have to be more adventurous with their style choices and dress according to the occasion. Take a good look at your existing wardrobe—it might be time to go shopping.

Invest in a couple of understated day dresses and consider buying your first little black dress—a classic staple that will see you through all kinds of events, guaranteed to make you feel grown up. A great-fitting pair of cigarette pants, or pants with a wider leg if you prefer, will provide a nice relief from your steady diet of jeans. Try looking for a chic, cropped jacket or a tailored blazer to replace your track jacket. A pencil skirt is a great basic that always looks good. And if you're really craving a more mature look, don't go ultra mini with your hemlines; just above the knee is a look that's both smart and sexy without going overboard. If buying a whole new wardrobe in one fell swoop is beyond your budget, look for quality bargains in vintage and thrift stores. It's amazing what you can find if you really take the time to look.

In terms of your hair, a tidy ponytail can be very chic, and we've even seen that casual 'do coming down a number of red carpets. But don't be afraid to change things up. A good stylist can talk you through various options and come up with a look that's right for you.

I also think shoes and accessories separate the girls from the women. If you don't own classic pumps, invest in a couple of pairs—one in black and one in nude. That should carry you through for a while. Also examine the jewellery you're wearing to make sure it's not too junior.

As I always maintain, it's best to dress for your spirit and your body type, rather than your chronological age. The fact that you recognize you're dressing like a teenager but craving something else, tells me you're ready to step up your style and leave your inner teenybopper behind.

WITH OLYMPIC FEVER KICKING INTO HIGH GEAR, designers were big fans of sportswear for summer. From laser-cut mesh bombers at Alexander Wang to vintage team jerseys with couture-like jogging pants at Isabel Marant, athletic wear garnered serious runway support. But the trend doesn't strictly rely on performance pieces: the look mixes well with your everyday wardrobe. Here's how to master the trend.

MATCH POINT

Give your nine-to-five wardrobe a sporty streak with classic pieces like the pencil skirt or sleeveless button-up reinvented in sporty fabrics with performance detailing.

Judith & Charles silk Blake blouse, $250, judithandcharles.com. Braided bracelet, Mokuba Toronto, 416-504-5358. H&M plastic bracelets, from $7, and cotton-blend skirt, $60, hm.com/ca. Nike Victory Shape polyester-spandex bra, $45, at The Nike Store. Sebago leather Spinnakers, $125, sebago.com. Tennis racket, $25, at Winners.

KNOCK OUT

With hot pink and vibrant orange shades getting attention, we like to think of lilac lipstick as summer's underdog hue. But be warned: this colour packs a serious punch.

Eve Gravel viscose Arizona top, $104, evegravel.com. Women's pro style training gloves, $45, at Walmart.

GOING PRO

The capri gets an upgrade in graphic prints. Inspired by the catwalk's mash-up of patterns, these will take you far beyond a winning workout wardrobe.

H&M polyester sleeveless top, $60, and plastic bracelets, from $7, hm.com/ca. Gap cotton V-neck hoodie, $50, gapcanada.ca. Nike polyester-spandex capris, $75, at The Nike Store. Nautica resin and stainless-steel NMX 650 watch, $225, at Sears.

FIT TO WIN

Paper-weight jackets and anoraks in hi-tech fabrics replace your boyfriend's bulky sweatshirt post-workout. Athletic wear should fit like actual clothing—easy, tailored pieces that skim your body, instead of tent-like hand-me-downs.

New Balance Double Stripe nylon jacket, $80, newbalance.ca. Plastic necklace, $15, hm.com/ca. Sandro polyester top, $270, thebay.com. Nautica resin and stainless-steel NMX 650 watch, $225, at Sears. Urbanears Plattan earphones, $70, urbanears.com. Nike Twist Tempo polyester shorts, $40, and Free run+ 3 running shoes, $125, at The Nike Store.

SAVE THE HONEY BEES

Canadian accessories designer Jenny Bird and honey-loving beauty brand Burt's Bees have come together to create a trendy bee-inspired friendship bracelet to help raise awareness and save the honey bee population in Canada. About 43 types are nearly extinct. Not-for-profit group The Pollinator Partnership hopes to plant bee-friendly gardens with pollinator-friendly plants and sell at least 1,200 bracelets with the proceeds going to the cause. “The connection to our food chain is too important to ignore,” Bird says. “It reminds us how fragile our planet is.” The Jenny Bird for the Bees bracelet in 18k gold- and silver-dipped brass is $24 at burtsbees.ca/forthebees. —Glynnis Mapp

SWITCH TO A SUMMER FRAGRANCE

I was trapped. It was a small room. The smell was nauseating and there was no escape from it. But it's not what you think! The small room was the waiting area where parents watch their pre-schoolers scamper around in ballet class in a blur of pink tulle. And the smell was the perfume of one of the other moms. It wasn't just assertive, it was downright bossy. The musk notes of her scent would probably have seemed just right on a crisp November evening but on a hot summer Saturday afternoon? Oh, no sister, please do not. I had a headache before they finished their pliés. Perfume etiquette is always important (as in, I shouldn't smell you before I'm close enough to be in conversation with you) but in the summer, it's absolutely essential. You should switch to a summer fragrance.

The Kit's beauty editor Deborah Fulsang is known for her love of perfume and is the kind of friend who always notices when you're wearing a new scent. She may always be wearing something delicious herself, but you never smell it until you lean in for a smooch. “Let's face it, an Oriental in 30-degree weather can be a bit much,” she says of the name of scents that the perfume world gives to sexy, musky blends better left to colder months. “I love going with a cologne in the summer. And then there's the whole range of new eau fraîche out there right now which have a lower concentration of perfume oil in them. They're breezy and easy to wear.”

For those of us who don't have a vanity studded with beautiful fragrance bottles, a little background: perfume is organized by style—Orientals, florals, chypres—which describe the kind of scent, but also by concentration. And this is more important when it comes to choosing a summer spritz. Fragrance buyer for The Bay, Heather Josey, broke it down for me: “A fragrance will launch as an eau de parfum—or EDP as we call it—which usually has heavier base notes and is a longer lasting fragrance. Then there's the eau de toilette (EDT) version, which is lighter. And an eau fraîche is even lighter, it doesn't have as much oil.” So, even those loyal to the quintessentially Oriental Opium can wear their favourite fragrance in July? “Yes,” insists Josey. “Opium Vapour is coming out and it's the lighter version. It's beautiful.”

But for most of us, going with a lighter version of a year-round favourite may not be enough. There's something about steamy days that just call for a different style of scent. Josey agrees. Fragrances that build on notes like lavender and fruits such as pineapple or apple feel—and smell—more appropriate than the vanillas and musks that might appeal at other times of the year. “It's like when I'm on vacation somewhere hot—I want to wear something completely different. I'll bring Dolce and Gabbana Light Blue because it's watery, fresh and breezy.” And that sounds like something I could get close to.

EMMA STONE'S FRESH FACE

The flip side of our full-to-Gaga popular culture? Emma Stone's breath-of-fresh-air elegance. We spied the beauty at last month's MTV awards, and yes, we also noticed her gorgeous visage at the premiere of The Amazing Spider-Man, and then made beauty notes. “For skin, I wanted it to look as if Emma had spent a day at the beach,” Chanel celebrity makeup artist Rachel Goodwin says of Stone's look. “The lip was the focal point, paired with a classic eye defined with liquid liner. I created a slightly sun-kissed look with a flush of colour using a foundation that was two shades darker than her normal skin tone,” she says. “Then, just a touch of cream blush to the apples of her cheeks.”

TRY: Chanel Powder Blush in In Love, $43, chanel.ca. Revlon Color Stay Liquid Liner in Black, $10, Grow Luscious Mascara in Blackest Black, $10, and Just Bitten Kissable Balm Stain in Rendezvous, $10, all revlon.ca. ## LIP SERVICE

Stop obsessing over finding that perfect, elusive lipgloss. We tapped a few beauty insiders for their go-to favourites—you know, the ones that aren't too sticky, have just the right sheerness, the perfect staying power and irresistible colour. Get ready to gloss and go BY DEBORAH FULSANG

BRITTANY BARKWELL, social media manager for Holt Renfrew/Muse "One of the joys of working at Holts is that I'm constantly sampling new beauty products—especially new lipglosses. But I am hooked on Chantecaille's luminous gloss in Passionfruit. They use natural botanicals in their products and the new applicator makes it easy to apply on the go." Brilliant Gloss in Passionfruit, $40, holtrenfrew.com

"Now that I'm comfortable with bright, bold shades, I'm finding it a bit challenging to go back to hint-of-colour glosses. On the odd occasion that I do want a subdued lip, I like M.A.C Suntints SPF 20 Liquid Lip Balm in Abalone (a clear pink) from the Hey Sailor! collection. They're more like lipgloss than lipbalm. They add shine, but almost no colour." Suntints SPF 20 Liquid Lip Balm in Abalone, $19, maccosmetics.com

AUDREY HYAMS ROMOFF, owner of Overcat Communications

"Since I was 12 years old, I have not left the house without black eyeliner and have always needed a perfect lipcolour to complement my dramatic eyes. While I envy Gwen Stefani's red pout, I know that I need a soft, neutral lip and subtle sheen to offset my kohl obsession. My favourite is Estée Lauder's Pure Color High Gloss in Bare Glow. It's sheer shine without the sticky feeling." Pure Color High Gloss in Bare Glow, $20, esteelauder.ca

CATHY LEDREW, modelling agency director at Ford Models, Toronto

"My favourite? It was Dermaglow Instant Lip Gloss, but it is no longer available, so I have my go-to, Stila, which has an amazing colour palette. At the end of the day, I can't live without simple Blistex. I wish it came in bright colours." Stila Lip Glaze in Raspberry, $29, shoppersdrugmart.ca, murale.ca

DEBORAH FULSANG, beauty editor at The Kit "Many lipglosses come and go in my purse, but there's almost always a Juicy Tubes in the mix. It is, after all, the mother of today's lipgloss. I love the colours, texture and shine—especially the pink-peach-coral Bolole hue. Nars's little pot 'o' gloss in Baby Doll is also one of my better-than-naked faves. From an everyday-wearability perspective, just add rich black mascara, a tinted moisturizer and you're good to go." Nars Lip lacquer in Baby Doll, $28, narscosmetics.ca. Lancôme Juicy Tubes (above) in Bolole, $22, lancome.ca

Makeup artist JACKIE SHAWN, Judy Inc.

"I have this lipgloss with me all the time: it is a flattering blend of peachy-pink. There are subtle gold flecks that pick up the light and it also looks good over a lipstick. It is by M.A.C and called Love Nectar. I use that, and in my on-set beauty kit, I use Ample Pink by M.A.C. It's a nude pink, perfectly paired with a smoky eye." ## WHAT IS SHE WEARING?

Twenty8Twelve shirt, Sir Alistair Rai scarf, One Teaspoon tank, Rich & Skinny jeans (in Doe), Frye boots and a vintage Longines watch. "I stole it from my Dad."

Heather Huntingford and her Bernese Mountain dog Leia

Balance is a concept that has figured prominently in Heather Huntingford's whole life. As a child, she was as dedicated to playing sports as she was studying. As a teenager, she was as comfortable riding horses around Vancouver's Southlands as she was at sea in her parents' boat. And when she graduated from the University of British Columbia with a Bachelor of Human Kinetics, she took her degree and opened her West Vancouver boutique Kiss & Makeup.

It comes as little surprise, then, that Huntingford easily manages a sartorial mix that is both casual and carefully considered, and that her wardrobe reflects this easy-yet-edgy equilibrium. "It's always about transition pieces. I have to be able to leave the store and go straight to the beach or out for dinner or whatever," she says. Her essential pieces include a good pair of boots, jeans and maxi dresses, often topped with a leather jacket and a scarf. "I like to mix patterns and textures," she says, before confessing, "I'm also a fan of denim on denim—the Canadian tuxedo." At the end of the day, in finding the perfect balance in her fashion statement, Huntingford lives by two hard-and-fast rules: "Scarves are a staple, and you can never wear too many accessories."
